

Metamorphosis

Reflections

By comparing the original concept and the final it is easy to see a level of refinement that is not evident in the concept.

In a way it is similar to comparing a sketch with a painting.

Original Design.

Adobe XD.

Final Design.

Screenshots.

My original expectations were exceeded by the outcome and I was more satisfied with the finished project.

Highlights included removing a pesky white border on the main image on the index page by adding “body {margin: 0;}” to the Stylesheet.

Most of the improvements that were made were by way of increment. The small fixes compounded to make an overall better finished design.

I would have liked to built more using flex box, and then utilized this tool to create a better, more responsive finished product.

The media rules that I have so far are quite limited, so this would have been good to refine further.